New Office for Van Nuys-Lankershim Lands—Ross E. Whitley to Assist His Father, H. J. Whitley.

Ross E. Whitley, one of the organizers and for the past two years a member of the Lankershim Development Company, has found it necessary to withdraw from the company in order to assist his father, H. J. Whitley, in developing and closing out different enterprises managed or controlled by the latter, or in which he is financially interested. He has established offices at No. 702-706 Title Insurance building, which will specialize in Van Nuys-Lankershim lands and he will devote most of his time to the development work now under the direction of his father, who is a large owner, general manager and one of the board of control of these properties. This will not be a general real estate office.

H. J. Whitley, who has so successfully developed his many enterprises both in California and the eastern and southern States, has decided to retire from active business as soon as the development of the Van Nuys-Lankershim lands is completed. He will then devote his efforts entirely to his long established banking and mortgage business.

Owing to his son's close personal knowledge of the Van Nuys-Lankershim property, he will rely in a great measure on the latter to assist in making this large enterprise a tremendous success, and this office will unquestionably be a large factor in the handling of these well known lands.

The other members of the Lankershim Development Company will continue the business of the corporation.
